

Bridgestone National Accounts Interface

Would you like to save time and increase the accuracy of your Bridgestone claims and credits?

You can add precious minutes to your workday with TireMaster's interface to Bridgestone's Automated Delivery Receipt System (ADRS). Now you can submit electronic claims for sales to national accounts, government agencies, and other customers who have purchasing agreements. By being prompted to request the proper information at the counter, you can reduce rejected claims. The link between TireMaster and Bridgestone's ADRS also makes it possible to automatically reconcile the credits you receive for these sales.

Along with increasing efficiency, the TireMaster-Bridgestone link can boost the accuracy of your books. Electronic claim submission and credit reconciliation limit the need for manual data entry, reducing the potential for errors. With the ADRS, up-to-date information about your Bridgestone customers and other Bridgestone dealers is also available at any time.

TireMaster and Bridgestone's ADRS help you:

- Save time
- Reduce rejected claims
- Prevent bookkeeping errors
- Maintain current customer information
- Decrease reliance on paper invoices and manual data entry
